

以下の英文を読み、後の問に答えなさい。

The Americans approve of organ donations, yet only about a quarter consent to donate their own. Meanwhile, most people in Austria, France, and Portugal consent to donate theirs. The difference? In the United States, people must choose to become an organ donor. In much of Europe, people must actively choose not to donate. So if organ donation is considered a social good, American policy could just be reversed.

問、次の文を本文の内容と合致させるには、()に a~e のどれを入れたらよいか。1つ選びなさい。

The system for organ donors in the United States could be improved by ().

a, doubling the number of people who approve of organ donations

b, helping people to become more independent and responsible

c, making donations automatic unless donors choose otherwise

d, refusing to follow the typical European pattern

e, urging people to plan more carefully for retirement

(2010年 早大 政経3より抜粋)